When Cindy was launched in the autumn of 1963 with an exciting wardrobe of fashionable clothes, no-one could have predicted that over the next thirty or so years she would become one of Britain's best-selling teenage dolls.

Accompanied by her boyfriend Paul and her kid sister Patch, Cindy was supplied with ever-changing fashions designed by, among others, Mary Quant, Hardy Amies, the Emanuels and more recently Vivienne Westwood.

This 300 page book with over 400 colour illustrations is packed with detailed year by year descriptions of all the changes made to Cindy herself and her marvellous wardrobe which forms a veritable gallery of British fashions in miniature.
